Queen's captures six gold medals at Ontario championships

HAMILTON/Staff

Queen's University enjoyed one of its best performances in recent years, winning six gold medals and 20 medals in all at the Ontario Universities and Ontario Women's Intercollegiate athletic championships track and field championships at McMaster University Saturday.

Queen's finished second overall in the men's division and the women's team was third over-all. Toronto was first in the men's division with 238 points and Queen's had 159. McMaster won the women's division with 177 points, Toronto had 176 and Queen's had 121.

"We've got some exciting people to work with," said Queen's head coach Rolf Lund. "The coaches and athletes are excited. It's a good atmosphere."

Rookie John David Dorman, of Cornwall, won the discus with a throw of 40.92 metres. Ironically, Dorman finished 23rd among 24 athletes in the same event at the Ontario high school championships this year.

"OFSAA has a tendency to unnerve people," Lund said. "At this competition he was probably relatively relaxed. There was no pressure on him."

Kingston's Nathalie Peloguin, a freshman from Loyalist Collegiate, won the women's shot put with a throw of 11.50 metres. She won the event at two other meets this fall.

Ian Melanson, a late addition to the team this year, took the gold in the javelin with a toss of 55.78 metres. The Toronto native was added to the OUA-bound team this week when another javelin thrower couldn't make the trip because of an exam. Melanson, a three-year veteran, didn't compete last year because of an arm problem.

"He threw 51 metres in the invitational meet (earlier this fall) and said he felt pretty good,"

Lund said. "But because he made his commitment so late in the season we felt the other fellow earned the chance (to compete Saturday). We put the list up Tuesday and he told us Wednesday he couldn't come because he had an exam."

Fourth-year student Gwen Bailey of Toronto, the team captain, won the women's 400-metre hurdles in a time of one minute 7.96 seconds.

"This is the first year she's really worked on the 400 hurdles," Lund said. "She's concentrated mainly on the 100, 200 and 400 (metres) in the past. This summer she did a fair bit of work on hurdles and now it's probably her best event."

Bailey led from start to finish in the race.

"The girl from Windsor (second-place finisher M.J. McKeever) never really challenged her," Lund said.

Chris Hamford, a third-year student from Toronto, won the high jump with a jump of 2.00 metres.

The sixth gold medal was won by the 1,600-metres relay team in a time of 3:28.45. The team was comprised of freshman Derek Hackshaw and sophomores Mike Edwards, Brent McPherson and anchor Trevor Van Nest of Kingston.

Queen's led entering the final lap but a Windsor runner passed Van Nest before the first turn of the lap. Van Nest would pass him down the stretch to give Queen's a gold medal.

Bailey was Queen's top athlete, winning four medals and garnering 28 points for the team.

She was third in 400 metres in 1:01.08 and was a member of the third-place 1,600-and 400-metres relay teams.

Van Nest won silver medals in the 800 and 1,500 metres. His times were 1:54.12 in the 800 and 4:00.6 in the 1,500.

A double medalist was rookie Susan Campbell, formerly of Loyalist Collegiate. Campbell finished second in women's high jump with a leap of 1.75 metres, a jump that broke a nine-year-old Queen's record. The Queen's women's high jump record was 1.68 metres, set by Sandy Cooper in 1978. Campbell, who also was second in the 100-metres hurdles in 16.8 seconds, earned 21 points for the team.

Sharon Mackinnon broke a 11-year-old school record in the women's 800 metres with a time of 2:16.99 which earned her a silver medal. The old record was 2:17.90 set in 1976 by Sue Spence.

Lund credited his coaching staff of Ted Jackson, Curt Bolton, Diane Gillis and Dwight Neddow for playing a large part in the team's success this fall.

"We do our best in the fall (compared to the indoor winter season) and the coaches gave a good effort to get the kids fired up," Lund said.

Other silver medalists from Queen's were Darren Williams in 100 metres and Kingston's Colin Dignum in 5,000 metres.

The other third-place finishes came from Jeff Shillington in 400-metres hurdles, Hamford in long jump, Mark Walters in 10,000 metres, and the men's 400-metres relay team.
